HEARING PROTECTION

It is estimated that approximately 30 million people in the U.S. are occupationally exposed to hazardous noise levels. One of the most common methods for minimizing worker exposure to these hazardous noise levels is the use of hearing protection. A wide variety of hearing protection is available, each with its own unique set of advantages and disadvantages. The most common types selected are described below.

NOISE REDUCTION RATING (NRR)

Hearing Protection is rated in NRR or Noise Reduction Rating. This is listed in dB, and is the maximum level of sound reduction the hearing protection will offer when worn.

decibel level (dB)	example of noise
140	rifle fire 1 meter away
120	sports game crowd noise
100	chain saw
90	drilling concrete, leaf blower
80	vacuum cleaner
50	floor fan

e7TIPS

PIPE SIZE SELECTION GUIDE

Knowing the pipe size you are working with can be confusing. Many people assume that the "pipe size" refers to the outside diameter of the pipe. It doesn't. "Pipe size" refers to what is considered the nominal diameter. The easiest way to know what nominal pipe size you are working with is to use a conversion chart. For male threads, measure the outside diameter of the pipe or pipe fitting and use the chart to identify the corresponding nominal diameter a.k.a "pipe size". For female threads, measure the inner diameter to find the "pipe size".

NOTE: "Pipe" and "tubing" are not measured the same way. Tubing is measured and named based on the actual outside diameter of the tube.

pipe size	OD (male) or ID (female)	decimal equivalent
3/8"	3/8"	0.313"
1/2"	13/32"	0.405"
3/4"	25/32"	0.540"
1"	1 1/8"	1.125"
1 1/4"	1 1/4"	1.315"
1 1/2"	1 5/8"	1.625"
2"	2 1/8"	2.125"
2 1/2"	2 3/8"	2.625"
3"	3 1/8"	3.125"
3 1/2"	4"	4.000"
4"	4 1/2"	4.500"

WATER HEATER SELECTION GUIDE

Water heaters are made to operate on natural gas, propane or electricity. When choosing which type of energy to use it is best to keep the same energy supply as the existing water heater. If the water heater is a new installation, the most efficient energy source for your area will work best.

fixture	GPM	average gallons per use	average temperature
tub	4	20	102° F
shower	2.5-3.0	20	104° F
washing machine	2	2	120° F
dishwasher	1.5	1.5	110° F
kitchen sink	1.5	1.5	110° F

DRILL BIT SELECTION GUIDE

Ultimately, drilling a hole is a simple task. With all the different drill bit materials, points, lengths, and coatings available, knowing how to select them will make the job smoother, and extend the life of the tool. This guide will concentrate on the two most common styles of drill bit, the 118° Conventional Point (General Purpose) and 135° Split Point (Heavy Duty). It will also cover bit lengths, materials of construction, and coatings.

Materials: Materials refers to what the drill bit is made of. The chart below will show what application a given material is best suited for.

material	application
high speed steel (hss)	general purpose, carbon steel, ferrous and nonferrous metals
cobalt	stainless steel, armor plating, and other harder metals
carbide	difficult or abrasive materials like cast iron, fiberglass, and nonferrous metals

Coatings: In some instances, drill bits are given a coating to improve performance and tool life. The following information will explain the advantages of the four most widely used coatings for drill bits.

coatings	advantages
black oxide	most common coating type. helps retain drilling lubricants. not recommended for nonferrous metals like aluminum.
TiN coated	titanium nitride provides extra lubricity at the drill point, for higher drilling speeds and longer tool life.
TiAlN coated	titanium aluminum nitride, most effective when higher drill speeds and feed rates are required. works well on stainless steel, titanium, ferrous metals, and high-temperature alloys.
bright finish	no surface coating. flutes are polished for improved chip removal. works well for nonferrous materials like aluminum.

TRASH LINERS AND BAG SELECTION GUIDE

While choosing a trash can liner and bag may seem as simple as finding one that will fit your waste can, there are a handful of terms you must familiarize yourself with and consider to ensure that your selection will provide the best results.

Knowing how to measure a trash liner will help you make sure you select the correct size for your trash container.

Bag Length: Use the height of the container, plus ½ of the diameter of the container bottom, plus 3" (for overhang). For square or rectangular containers, use the diagonal of the container bottom, rather than the diameter.

Bag Width: Use ½ of the outer circumference of the container.

Bags can come in either a coreless roll, or flat pack box, for ease of storage and distribution.

Liners may also be specified in thickness in either mils or microns. To convert mils to microns, multiply the mils by 25.4, or convert microns to mils by dividing microns by 25.4.
